were Julian W. Curtiss, G. T. Kitby, John B. McCabe, Dr. L. H. Gulick and
D. W. Botassi, the Greek Consul.
Athletes whom the committee decided upon last night to send abroad, in addition to those selected a week ago, are
F. R. Moulton, of the Kansas City (Mo.)
Athletic Association; Michael Spring and M. J. Sheridan, of the Pastime Athletic Club; Charles J. Bacon and Harvey Cohn, of the Irish-American Athletic Association, and Ellery H. Clark, of the Boston Athletic Association.
Sheridan, who is the American allround champion, was under suspension by the Amateur Athletic, and as his name did not appear on the list of those from which the others were first chosen, a cry of unfairness was raised in certain quarters. The selection of the suspended champion, who was yesterday reinstated, now insures harmoney over the final make-up of the Yankee team.
Moulton will compete in the four hundred metre race, Cohn and Spring in the long distance runs and Marathon race, Sheridan and Clark in the all-around championship and Pentathlium race, and Bacon in the eight hundred metre race.
M. P. Haipin, of the New York Athletic

O'Brien now says that he wants to fight Jeffries. This is what Jack said to Bob Edgren on the subject:

"I figure that I can beat Jeffries within twenty rounds. Of course, I couldn't stand up like a 'longshoreman and swap punches with me—the way he would like to-have me. That would be foolish. I have my way of fighting, and I think it's the best way any man ever invented. If yet a chance to fight the big fellow, I will use my own style and take my time.

even in less time than that. I say I could do it in fifteen rounds easily, just to leave a safe margin. And it would be as easy for me to knock Jeffries out under those circumstances as it was to finish Kautmann when I had him so bad he couldn't see where the blow came from. You'd be surprised fl you knew what a little punch will put a man away when it is placed neatly. Just a little tap on the jaw will do the business. Sure! it reguld get Jeff. Kaufmann was younger than he is, and pretty near as husky. Yet I didn't have to set myself for the punch that finally put him out. I just chipped him nicely on the point, and down he went."

The case will probably reach the jury Wednesday night. Opinion is almost universal that while defendant has made out a complete case of temporary insanity, he is too dangerous to be turned loose and too irresponsible to be hung. His counsel are confident of acquittal.

Much Wild Talk,

Much Wild Talk.

There has been much "wild talk" about the absence of Pullman Car Conductor Gittman as a witness for the prosecution in the Matthews trial. The condensed report given of his testimony at the preliminary trial of Matthews before Mayor Murphy, which is reproduced below, will prove of interest. It has been impossible to locate Gittman. At the beginning of this trial the prosecution stated that he was sick at a sanitarium in Philadelphia. The Philadelphia papers at once exhausted every means known to modern newspaper enterprise to find Gittman there, and could find no such person in any hospital, infirmary or sanitarium. They have bombarded the press correspondents here for Gittman's address.

since, though a suppoena has been issued for him.

It will be noted that in the testimony of Conductor Gittman, neither on the direct nor cross-examination was any question asked him remotely suggestive of an improper life led by Mrs. Matthews, although at that time the prosecution must have been in possession of the same evidence from the policeman that it

Gittman's Evidence.

Gittman's Evidence.

Captain Gittman's evidence before the Mayor was reported in the papers of December 5, 1906, as follows: The revelations to-day were worse than had been previously told or believed. The Pullman car conductor, who runs between Richmond and Greensboro and Raleigh, Captain James T. Gittman, of Richmond, was the first witness, telling of having called at the Matthews residence at 9:30 on Friday morning, being intimate with the family. Dr. Matthews, in a staggering condition, met him at the door, and asked him in the parlor. He first began to talk about his wife's not being liked by his people or her people, whom she felt hated her. He then began to talk about not having slept any in three nights, and was very excited.

"He wanted to talk about family troubles until I told him to stop, and not to do so now or at any time with me. Then he said his wife was upstairs and was very sick, having taken 80 30-100 grains strychnine the night before, and thought he had gotten her over it.

Was Horrified.

"I was horified, and suggested that she have another physician, but he said not she was doing very well then. Then he excused himself, and said he would go upstairs and give her some medicine. I asked to be allowed to go and see if I could be of any assistance, but he said she was not in a condition to see company.

she was not in a condition to see company.

"He left, and while he was out the door bell runs. I went to the door, and in the passage I heard his wife breathing so loudly upstairs I went up there. The door was half open, and I saw Dr. Matthews before the dresser preparing a hypoderiule, it appearing to me that he was using it on himself. I want to the door; he waved me back, saying his wife was in no condition to see company. He came to the door, but I pushed on in, went to the bed, saw that the woman was apparently dead except for her hoarse breathing, and I went immediately downstairs, sent the little boy for Mrs. Hay, telephoned for physicians, and as soon as Mrs. Hay came, went and looked for physicians myself, the little boy going also.

the use of drugs. I had never seen him that way but once, when I dined there, and his little boys called attention to "father's being doped" at the dinner table, and I saw he was bad off. His sister, Mrs. Nick Gorman, of Manchester, about three months ago, asked me about his using morphine, and that was the first time I had heard of his being habitually that way. When he met me at the door I had to lead him to the parlor, he was so drunk and helpless. He insiged on telling about his family troubles before he ever told me of his wife's illness, and that he had about gotten her over it. When Drs. Farrar and Brooks arrived he went over the same story, about her taking strychnine, that he had told me.

ning, the details of which were learned ceeded in horror and hardship by no tragedy of the sea in which Boston has been concerned for many years. With their vesel stripped of her maste and salls, her hull filled and soaked with water, and with the ruined hulk driven by wind and current, a mere water-logged raft and derelight, the captain, one passenger and crew of eight men were for four days huddled upon the after-house, barely subsisting on a little canned corn and water, clinging for their lives to the icy woodwork, and exposed to the seas which constantly broke over them. Finally, when the deck-house was washed away, the men were forced to take refuge on the spanker boom, from which some of them dropped from sheer exhaustion when the boats of the Casilda arrived alongside, the others jumping into the boats to save their lives. Before that the mate had leaped overboard in delirium, but a Norwegian salior, in spite of the fact that he had been injured by the shifting deckload of lumber, sprang after him and effected his rescue. All of the ten individuals were in a state of collapse from suffering, hunger and exposure when taken off by the Casilda, The rescue was made 150 miles south by east of the Nantucket South Shoals lightship, and when last seen the schooner was barely afloat. ## SAILORS ADRIFT FIRST DEGREE MANSLAUGHTER

Experience of Crew of Mary Man-

Berthe Claiche for the murder of Emil Gerdron, came to a sudden termination to-day when the young French woman pleaded guilty on advice of her counsel, to manslaughter in the first degree. That this however, is not the end of the case and that an attempt will be made to continue it as an investigation of a certain class of policemen with Berthe Cleiche as state's witness, was made plain by statements both of the judge before whom the trial was conducted and by the defendants own counsel. (By Associated Press.) BOSTON, MASS., March 6 .- The wreck of the four-masted schooner Mary Man-Supreme Court Justice Davis, in re-Supreme Court Justice Davis, in remanding the young woman for sentence until March 29, and in discharging the jury, said:
"There are many features of the case which induced the court to accept and the defendant to offer the plea of manishaughter in the first degree; and I think when final results shall have been reached, and sentence imposed, the court will see that the interests of justice will be served."

Sensational Situation Sensational Situation.

At is close the defendant was carried to the Tombs prison struggling hysterically with the police officers and screaming. The trial had proceeded up to the point where it was expected that Berthe Claiche would go on the witness stand herself within the next few minutes. When during a recess her counsel went into conference with District Attorney Jerome, At the end of this conference Judge Rosalsky, one of the defendant's lawyers, talked to his client for three minutes. At the close of this talk she burst into into tears and was so near collapse that she had to be assisted to walk to the railing where she was to plead. A clerk asked her if she would plead guilty to manslaughter in the first degree. The young woman replied: "Yes," and fainted, failing to the floor of the courtroom. When revived she became hysterical, crying out; "I shall never see my mother on this earth again." At the Tombs a physician was summoned to attend her.

Possible charges against policement growing out of this case have been foreshadowed from the beginning of the trial. The prosecution at the beginning declared that Gerdron was lured to his death on July eighth, last, by a plot in which a policeman assisted the defendant.
